The Queen of New Pulp Art Unveils Website

CENTRALIA, WA. Flying Pony Studios, the studio site of artist — Sara Light-Waller — offers new pulp artwork for sale. With this site relaunch the artist unveils a series of new pulp paintings and a web shop featuring original artwork and prints, as well as eBooks of her illustrated pulp novellas, novelettes, and stories.

Sara takes a scholarly approach to her painting, drawing inspiration from the best of the early 20th century pulp illustrators — George and Jerome Rozen, Walter Baumhofer, Rafael DeSoto, Virgil Finlay, and Edd Cartier. Through painstaking study she creates pulp art which feels vintage even when the subject matter is more modern. She works in many different mediums including watercolor, acrylics, casein, pen & ink, graphite, and scratchboard.

The artist takes commissions for book & magazine illustrations & book covers while continuing to produce fine art for sale. Her next book release, Incarnable, is scheduled for a Spring 2022 release and will include all original book art in the pulp style.
